

Treating Wounds during COVID-19

The current COVID-19 crisis has left many hospital wound care centers closed or with limited hours placing patients at risk. In order to treat these patient's wounds, physicians often consider doing so in their office. There are many things to consider and our goal is to assist physicians in this endeavor.

Below are links to 3 podcasts that dive into providing wound care in the physician office. Dr. Sohail Waien operates 4 private wound care clinics, which he started from scratch in the past four years. We hope that you enjoy these informative podcasts and that it helps make a difference in treating your patients.

Episode 1: Strategies to establish office based Wound Care

Episode 2: Tools of the trade in office based Wound Care

Episode 3: Economics in office based Wound Care

We wish all the best to you and your patients during this difficult time.